Dear [name],

I am applying for the [role] position at [company]. I have worked inside this industry on both sides of it, which is why I am writing to you specifically rather than broadly.

On the operator side, at Creedroomz Live Casino I planned, launched and optimised digital campaigns across PPC, paid social, email and SEO support. I ran a $3,000 monthly budget as a sequence of tested hypotheses rather than a spend plan, localised campaigns into three languages, and lifted landing-page conversion by 15%. On the affiliate side, at Digital Caramel I acquired and onboarded 60 new partners while holding around fifteen active negotiations a week, worked with leadership on the marketing strategy, and reworked the onboarding flow so a new partner went live in half the time. CPA and RevShare conversations are ordinary to me, not something I would need to be walked through.

What I add to that is delivery discipline from a different profession entirely. For six years I ran high-volume, deadline-bound work: 200+ parallel cases and 30+ hearings a week at an arbitration court, then up to twelve complex client projects at once with eight specialists reporting to me, where I rewrote the workflows and checklists that became the team standard. I also carry a law degree and have provided legal support for licensing in specific jurisdictions — in iGaming that is a practical asset rather than a line of trivia.

In 2026 I made the move into project management formal: a U.S.-standards course run by the Yerevan American Corner with the U.S. Embassy, a month of C programming at 42 Yerevan alongside full-time work, and second place at HackNation. I work in Armenian, Russian and English, which in this market removes a layer between the team, the partners and the players.

I would be glad to talk through where your bottleneck actually is — acquisition, retention, partner throughput or delivery — and where I would be most useful. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Ishkhan Khchoian
